

RRC Bulletin

April 2023 - Issue 134

2023 UK River Prize Winners Announced

Winner of the Catchment-scale award

River Trent, England - 'Staffordshire Trent Valley'

Staffordshire Wildlife Trust & Environment Agency

Winner of the reach-scale award

Rottal Burn, River South Esk, Angus, Scotland - 'Restoring the Rottal Burn'

River South Esk Catchment Partnership

Find out more about the winners and finalists

2023 Scientific Advances in River Restoration (SARR) Conference Bookings Open

6th - 8th September 2023, University of Liverpool

We have an exciting line up of speakers from 20 countries. A range of subjects across our conference themes will be discussed including advancements in science promoting more effective, evidence guided restoration practice, the development of new tools and technologies, and understanding what we are aiming to achieve with restoration and how to accomplish this in a changing world.

Interested in sponsoring the SARR conference? Check out the packages available and secure your sponsorship place now!

Find out more & book your place

2023 RRC Conference Declaration Published

400 river experts attended the 2023 River Restoration Centre (RRC) Annual Network Conference in Birmingham on April 19th & 20th titled 'An Action Strategy for River Restoration'.

The consensus view from the conference is that to achieve the social, environmental and economic benefits of restoring healthy rivers and functioning floodplains in the UK, there are 8 key statements we must address.

Find out more & read the 8 statements

We would like to thank

and our core funders for their continued support

